

Rote memorization and spoon-fed learning are no longer acceptable for 21st Century Education.

It's Time for a Critical Thinking Revolution

CRITICAL THINKING

Critical Thinking is the most essential 21st century skill but it is still a luxury good. Only 1 out of 10 educators teach critical thinking, and this educator usually only teaches at elite schools or to the most elite students.

THE PROBLEM

Teachers have difficulty in finding time and tools to teach critical thinking to all students.

Principals struggle with limited resources to develop and support teachers in delivering critical thinking instruction

How can we help teachers transform from asking "what" and "how to" to "why" and "what if?"
For ALL students?

The Solution

thinkLaw helps all educators teach critical thinking to all students.

STANDARDS-ALIGNED SUPPLEMENTAL CURRICULUM

An award-winning curriculum of teacher guides, student workbooks, and virtual support tools to help Social Studies and/or ELA educators teach critical thinking through real-life legal cases.

POWERFUL PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT

A 4-part series of interactive workshops with follow up one-on-one coaching and support to help teachers in all grades deliver rigorous and engaging critical thinking instruction through enhanced inquiry strategies based on the Socratic method and other powerful pedagogical practices.

thinkLaw's Impact

Founded in Las Vegas, Nevada by thinkLaw Founder/CEO Colin Seale, Esq., schools are now using thinkLaw in Texas, Arizona, Nevada, Washington, D.C., New Jersey, New York, and California, including large school districts like the New York City Department of Education and the Clark County School District, and high-achieving Title I charter schools such as IDEA San Benito (Rio Grande Valley), the Bay Area Technology School (Oakland), Mater Academy of Las Vegas (Las Vegas), and child welfare & juvenile detention agencies in Las Vegas, NV and Tucson, AZ.

In Texas, we have been approved to work with Dallas ISD, Spring Branch ISD, and five other districts across the State. And thinkLaw's game-changing approach to changing critical thinking has been selected for presentations several prominent conferences including the National Title I Conference, the National Council for the Social Studies Conference, and several other district, state, and national education conferences.

High Student Engagement

Rated thinkLaw favorably, or highly favorably

Improved willingness to apply critical thinking

Increased their understanding of different view points

Believed their ability to analyze arguments improved

thinkLaw allowed us to push students beyond just finding the 'right' answer, and forced them to dig deep into their reasoning to find creative ways to identify and solve problems. thinkLaw gave our high-achieving students even more confidence to tackle life's challenges."

- Dawson College Bound

If we must prepare students for the future, we must admit that critical thinking is the essential 21st century skill. So we can longer continue to treat critical thinking as a luxury good.
